

Environment factors can cause major problems for your critical facilities and assets. Temperature, humidity, flood, power, smoke, and other environmental conditions can negatively affect data centers, cold storage, manufacturing, and facilities of all types. Even a slight change in temperature or humidity, or the introduction of water or smoke, can spell disaster for valuable equipment, property, or the business.

AVTECH has spent the last 30 years providing solutions that proactively monitor the environment and help warn of changes that might cause problems. Our products are helping protect facilities in 181 countries, 98% of the Fortune 1000, the United Nations, Pentagon, FBI, and thousands of other facilities worldwide. You can trust Room Alert to help protect your critical facilities and assets.

Room Alert®

Room Alert monitors environmental conditions such as temperature, humidity, power, flood/water leakage, smoke/fire, air flow, room entry, motion and more. With multiple models currently available, there are options available for any size or type of facility. Room Alert provides instant notification of environment changes, logging and reporting to identify trends, and some models can even trigger actions to help mitigate the introduction of unwanted environment factors.
